SAKE

Sake is a strong part of Japanese history with over 200 years of brewing. Sake is brewed from polished rice (the level of polish on the rice affects the final flavour), water, yeast and Japan's 'national culture', Koji.

It has an elegant, soft expression, allowing delicate fresh foods like sashimi to express itself. All sake has no preservatives and is gluten free.

ALL SAKE STYLES CAN BE SERVED CHILLED, ROOM TEMPERATURE OR WARM.

DAIGINJO/JUNMAI DAIGINJO

Rice grains are highly polished with 50% or more of the outside of each grain removed.

GINJO/JUNMAI GINJO

Rice grains receive a moderate level of polishing with 40% or more of the outside of each grain removed.

JUNMAI

Sake in which all alcohol in the beverage is produced from the brewing of rice in the Sake making process.

HONJOZO

Rice is polished to remove 30% or more of the outside of each grain; a small amount of distilled alcohol is also added to achieve lighter, more fragrant characteristics.

GENSHU

The Sake is not diluted by the addition of water to lower the ABV

NAMA-SAKE

A special category of sake which does not undergo pasteurisation. The yeast is still alive and active within the sake adding more character and richness to the final sake.

JUNMAI DAIGINJO - RICE POLISHED DOWN TO 50% OR LESS

The pinnacle of quality and prestige in sake brewing. These sake are produced from highly polished (50% removed) rice grains to craft ethereal, pure sake that offer floral, fruit led and sweet spice aromas.

JUNMAI

Literally 'Pure Rice', these sake represent the most robust and intense flavours offered by our range of sake. Their complexity and character are crafted through the incorporation of a higher percentage of the outer layers of rice grain in the brewing process.
